

SMALL STATES IN THE INTERNATIONAL SYSTEM

Contents

Preface

Chapter 1. The small state:

- What is a small state?
- Typology of small states

1.1 The study of small states

1.2 The role of the small state in main concepts of international relations

- Realism
- Pluralism
- Globalism

Chapter 2. The small state in the international political system

1.1 Aspects of national security

- National security and the small state
- Political security
- Military security
- Economic security
- Societal security
- Environmental security
- Some contemporary problems of national security

2.2 Capabilities of the small state

- Foreign policy characteristics
- Democratic control over foreign policy
- Diplomacy of a small state

2.3 The tool of a small state's diplomacy-alliances

- Asymmetric alliances
- Military alliances

2.4 Foreign policy roles: buffer, neutrality, nonalignment

- Buffer state
- Neutrality
- Nonalignment

2.5 The small state in the international economic system

- Some aspects of the small state's economy

Chapter 3. New type of a small state: post-Soviet state

1.1 The process of democratization

- Democratization and security
- Democratization and ethnic nationalism

3.2 Institutional reforms and the role of the state

- Planned institutional reforms
- Necessity for a state policy
- Four main problems
- The role of institutions

3.3 Nationalism factor

Chapter 4. Internal weaknesses of newly independent states

4.1 Bad governance

4.2 Corruption

4.3 Parochialism

4.4 Amoral familism

4.5 Reliance on a strong leader

4.6 Economic problems of small post-Soviet states

Chapter 5. Security problems of post-Soviet states

- Ambiguity of security
- Weak countries/weak states
- Amity/enmity
- Political culture – a source of threat
- Disintegration/reintegration
- Security complex or collective security structure?

5.1 Foreign policy of small post-Soviet states – the case of Georgia

- The formation of Georgia's foreign policy
- Georgia, Russia and the West
- The choice of Georgia

Conclusion